Petitioner (2) despd 4/9/95

The petitioner gives a long description of his private affairs, states that his family consists of five sons, that he was once a well-to-do jewel merchant, that he is an extremely sensitive and honest man, that his present circumstances are much straitened, that he is involved in debt, that his creditors are threatening to ruin him by an attachment of the remnant of his property now valued at Rs 600, and that if he receives no encouragement of instant relief his inevitable choice is to die a self-imposed death along with his family. The only course left to him to avoid this miserable end is to appeal to Govt for aid. He requires a sum of Rs 3000 to discharge his debts and to renew his trade. He prays that orders may issue to any Govt bank or treasury to grant him a loan of the above sum which he promises to return by 12 annual instalments.
