I saw para 3(i) of the draft it appears that the copy-stamped paper business works out as under, reflecting distinctions between types of work: — lakhs

Total receipts	5.57
Less cost of paper	.94
Net receipts	4.63
Paid to copyists	4.90
	.27

Loss in 5 years or over Rs 5000 p. a.

This depends on the assumption that the paper costs 4 p. a.
per sheet, which may or may not be correct. Please ascertain what it really does cost — I can't see why we should sustain any loss & if we really do we must alter the system.
In applying, please look up the point whether there is any 'what' similar loss in the 'just' dept.

NOTE FOR THE HONORABLE MEMBER.

I am afraid nothing can be done. On the whole there is a profit. It is a pity that when the system was introduced it never seemed to have occurred to anyone that the profit would go to the supply while Govt. incurred a loss. I suppose there is no option in regard to treating the receipts as part of the Stamp Rev. ? If they were treated as Rev. just as miscellaneous, Govt. would do much better. But can we change the classification now ?

Note for the Hon'ble Member.

The Hon'ble Member wished to know whether the introduction of stamped paper for copies in both revenue and judicial offices had led to a loss on the whole, irrespectively of the distribution between Imperial and Provincial.

2. A statement is appended showing the financial effect of the scheme up to the end of 1896-97. It will be seen that Lakhs.

(i) the total receipts aggregate.	17.90
(ii) the cost of paper and discount to vendors....	3.30
	14.60
(iii) the total remuneration to copyists (rev. & judl.)...	12.43
Total profit.	2.17

3. Of this Imperial gains 3.65 and Provincial losses..... 1.48

(excluding pensionary charges on account of superintendents, examiners readers &c. which may amount to .03 per annum) In the letter to India the loss to Provincial was computed at 1.41.

4. The cost of paper was assumed at 4 pies per sheet. The figures now taken ^{work on the average is} bring out 3.2 pies, but as the number of sheets increases with consumption and the rate of exchange varies, the figures for the current and ensuing years are approximate only
