GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

READ—the following papers :—

Memorandum, in the Financial Department, No. 243, dated 30th January 1897.

Read—the following letter from R. A. GAMBLE, Esq., Under Secretary to the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department, to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras, dated Calcutta, 12th December 1896, No. 5260-Ex. :—

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 617, dated 22nd September last, in which you inquire whether it was intended that the term "deputation," as used in my letter, No. 2105, dated 18th May 1891, should be taken in the sense in which it is defined in Article 94 of the Civil Service Regulations.

2. In reply, I am to say that a reference to the correspondence of 1885 quoted in the margin shows that the word "deputation" was used in the limited sense of "deputation on special duty," and that it was not intended to include acting appointments in temporary vacancies.

I am, however, to add that, if the rule has hitherto been applied in practice to cases of ordinary acting appointments, the Government of India will not raise any objection to the proposed extension of the orders.

Copy forwarded to the Accountant-General, Madras.

Memorandum—No. 243, Financial, dated 30th January 1897.

Referred to the Accountant-General for favour of report as to the practice in this Presidency in regard to ordinary acting appointments.

(By order.)

(Signed) A. R. KNAPP,
Ag. Assistant Secretary.

From F. C. HARRISON, Esq., Officiating Accountant-General, to the Chief Secretary to Government, dated Fort St. George, 10th February 1897, No. 464.

With reference to your Financial Department memorandum, No. 243, dated 30th January 1897, I have the honour to state that, when the rule was introduced, the late Mr. Clogstoun (in 1886) ruled that an officer could draw tentage of his substantive rank when officiating or on deputation. In 1890, Mr. Rawlins ruled that tentage could not be given in officiating appointments except in privilege leave vacancies. I hold that tentage cannot, under the letter of the rules contained in Article 304, be drawn by the officiating officer when the appointment officiated in carries no tentage.

I understand, however, the Government of India have no objection (if Madras Government so desire) to the practice hitherto generally followed being undisturbed. As officers in the case permitted by Mr. Rawlins could a fortiori draw tentage under the late Mr. Clogstoun's more extended interpretation, it may be said that such was the established practice.

ORDER—No. 186, Financial, dated 23rd February 1897.

The more extended application of the rule permitted by the Government of India will, in view of the opinion expressed by the Accountant-General, be adopted and the claim of M.R.Ry. Venkataramdas Nayudu Garu, referred to in the Accountant-General's endorsement, No. 2026, dated 4th July 1896, will be admitted.

Please see the notes flagged H in the original of G.O. No. 616-7, dated 22nd September 1896.

The Govt. of India states that if the rule has hitherto been applied in practice to cases of ordinary acting appointments, it will not raise any objection to the extension of the orders. But from the Accountant-General's report dated 4th July 1896 (flagged F) it would appear that the rule has not been so applied hitherto. If it is decided to take no further action in the matter, the papers will be

Director of Public Instruction

The question having arisen
whether H. A. By Venkatarao des Nayudu, a Deputy Collector could draw tentage while he acted for three months in a privilege leave vacancy, the Govt of India was addressed a letter whether its ruling in 1885 on this subject, similar subject of drawing tentage during 'deputation' should be applied to acting appointments.
The Govt of India replies that its ruling may be extended to such cases if that has been the practice in the Presidency.
The Acc^t Gen^l has stated in the current that such has been the practice.
