I doubt very much if the estimate is at all correct: there must be heads of tribes and that will be easily seen up of at a much faster rate than 200 papers a day.

Sir,

The Head assistant Collector requests that an additional clerk may be entertained in his office for the purpose of sorting the old records. He states that there are 120 duffers of such records, each duffer containing about 1000 papers. At the rate of 200 papers per day, (this number is fixed by the Head assistant Collector), the whole work will occupy a clerk 600 working days or nearly 2 years and 3 months excluding Sun days and holidays. The Head assistant Collector states that the permanent establishment of his office cannot do this work
