SEPTEMBER.

Reorganization of the Clerical and Menial Staff of the High Court.

Approving, with remark, the proposals for the —, transferring the proposition statement to the Financial Department, and requesting the High Court to report on the progress made in giving effect to the reorganization of the interpreter's establishment sanctioned in G.Os., No. 1191, dated 3rd June 1895, and No. 164, dated 27th January 1896.

GOVERNMENT OF MADRAS.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT.

Read—again the following paper :—

G.O., R. No. 566, Judicial, dated 26th April 1898.

Read—the following letter from D. W. G. COWIE, Esq., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature, Madras, to the Chief Secretary to Government (through the Accountant-General), dated 17th February 1898, Ref. on Cur. No. 431 :—

I am directed to submit certain proposals for the reorganization of the clerical staff on the Appellate Side of the High Court and the revision of the establishment of court-keepers and menials.

2. The present strength of the Appellate Side office was fixed in 1887—vide G.O., No. 181, Financial, dated 7th February 1887, in which the proposals contained in Mr. Ross' letter, dated 2nd December 1886, No. 213, were approved. The additions then sanctioned were necessitated by the growth of work in both the judicial and administrative branches of the office. That in the first-named branch has continued to advance, and I am to say that the present staff is no longer able to cope with it satisfactorily. In administrative business there has not been the same increase and, consequently, the proposals made in this letter have for their main object the strengthening of the judicial department. The statement appended contrasts the figures of 1885 (the year quoted in Mr. Ross' letter above mentioned) and 1897.

3. Two statements are enclosed—enclosure 1 is a proposition statement in the prescribed form; enclosure 2 compares the present and proposed establishments and officer. Details of the proposed changes are given below.

4. Their general effect would be to increase the strength of the judicial while slightly reducing that of the administrative branch and to re-model the menial establishment of both sides of the court's office, placing them on one roster and under one head.

5. Taking first the judicial branch of the Appellate Side, the staff is as it was fixed ten years ago, but there has in the interval been considerable rearrangement to meet the increase of work some 60 per cent., and it is necessary that an adequate staff should be provided and its duties clearly defined and distributed. These comprise all the judicial work of the court such as the admission and posting of cases, the printing and translation of records, the drafting of decrees and judgments and the despatch of copies of them to the lower courts with the records, the taxation of costs, the preparation of bills for the printing and translation of records, and for the payment of extra translators, as well as other miscellaneous duties.

6. The head of this branch is the manager whose appointment and pay it is proposed to retain as at present, his duties being by far the most important in the office. He has two assistants—the deputy manager who superintends the translation and printing of the records of cases for the court, and the so-called senior bench clerk who sees to the disposal of the cases after they have been heard. The latter has not of late years done duty in court and his work as head of a department is so heavy that he could not be spared for such duty. It is proposed to style him assistant manager and pay him Rs. 150 per mensem as at present. Of the remaining seven bench clerks, one, it is suggested, should be assigned to the Admission Court, its work and interim orders, the remainder being retained. With the assistance of the translators they would suffice for the work in court.

7. The translators are six in number, half of them being paid from the Suitors' Translation Fund under the arrangement sanctioned in 1887. This number it is proposed to retain as, although the quantity of court translation work is less than it was, the translators are required to take their turn of duty in court and in some cases to undertake the preparation of cases for the Privy Council which is work that should be entrusted only to reliable hands. It is proposed that the fees paid by the suitors for the preparation of such cases should be credited to Government and the preparation of them be invariably undertaken by the translators. The average receipts of such fees for the last few years have been sufficient to pay for the full time of two translators on Rs. 60 per mensem and the income from this source would not fluctuate. Care would be taken that the translators performed a due proportion of suitors' work.

8. It has been found that the taxing clerks' duties have not been efficiently performed, and it is therefore proposed that they should be abolished and the work be in future done by the bench clerks to whom it naturally falls. At the same time to counterbalance the additional work thus thrown on the bench clerks, a clerk on Rs. 50 (to be styled decree examiner) might be appointed to take charge of all criminal and second appeals summarily dismissed, short judgments dismissing cases with costs, etc. This arrangement, which has been embodied in these proposals, would have the effect of preventing considerable delay at present inevitable and the time of the bench clerks would not be wasted on unimportant work.

9. It would be well to abolish the interim orders clerk, his duty being divided between the bench clerk assigned to the Admission Court and the filing clerks to whom orders on representative and similar petitions appropriately fall as involving amendment of record and registers.

10. For nearly two years it has been found necessary to depute a bench clerk to assist the appeal examiner, and for this reason the addition of a second examiner is now proposed. Other minor but essential changes are the raising of the pay of the judgment drafters to Rs. 25 per mensem and that of the fair copyists to Rs. 20 and the addition of one of each of these classes to the establishment.

11. To recapitulate: the result of these proposals would be to increase the number of hands in the judicial branch from 69 to 79 and the establishment would cost Rs. 337 per mensem more than at present; but this increase is out of all proportion to the increase of work that has to be met, and it should be stated that the pay of the notice clerks, now included in the cost of the regular establishment, is properly a charge on the Process-service Fund and should be met from it as in the mufassal.

12. Turning to the administrative branch which consists of the correspondence and statistical departments under separate superintendents, it has been found that two officers of this standing are not necessary and their presence has led to friction and confusion. The record-room, the receiving and despatching clerks of the two departments are common to both, and one officer can with ease superintend both, if he has proper assistance. It is proposed to place them both under a superintendent (to be styled superintendent, administrative branch) on Rs. 250 per mensem and to assign to him a well-paid head clerk for each department. Of these the head clerk of the statistical department should be the better paid, as he would be responsible for much of the duty of preparing the annual administration reports.

13. Another change which is proposed in this branch is the addition of a clerk on Rs. 50 per mensem to have charge of stationery, statistical and other forms and the duty of complying with the indents of mofussal courts. Work in connection with the annual Pledership Examination should no longer be performed by clerks on the establishment. It has been found to interfere with the work of the office and there is no reason why the Secretary of the Pledership Examination Board should not entertain a small temporary establishment of his own.

14. The result of these proposals, if adopted, would be to reduce the number of hands in this branch from 28 and 24 and to effect a saving of Rs. 218 per mensem in the cost of this branch of the establishment. Before passing on, it should be stated that it is proposed to make Rs. 20, the pay of the lowest grade of clerks, as in the Presidency town an educated man cannot live with comfort on less.

15. The court-keepers and menial establishment are now divided between the two sides of the court, but now that the offices have been placed under one head, there is no reason why this arrangement should continue and a single establishment keepers (two Europeans and one native) who, with a jamadar and duffadar, attend and High Court building, grounds and watchmen. It is proposed to give up one of the European court-keepers and the native court-keeper and to substitute for them an assign to him one European assistant, a jamadar and two duffadars for duty in the courts for, except during sessions when the chief court-keeper would take his turn of duty in court, one European should suffice to keep order. There should also be a duffadar to assist in the care of the building and grounds and, as at present, another to be in charge of the Chief Justice's peons.

16. The gollahs and lascars on the Original Side who are virtually peons should in future be described as such and should be graded among the peons. No reduction in the total number is proposed, as the present establishment is not too large, and from it gate-keepers will have to be provided when the wall and gates lately sanctioned for the compound have been constructed. The garden establishment has lately been taken over from the Public Works department and in it no changes are called for. The proposed alterations would reduce the number of hands from 108 to 104 and would result in a saving of Rs. 35 per mensem.

17. It will be seen that these proposals, if adopted, would add to the present ernment and at the same time it may again be mentioned that the pay of the notice clerks should be debited to the Process-service Fund (paragraph 11 supra). It is proposed, and I am to say that the additions suggested are absolutely essential.

18. I am to add that no hardship would be caused by the alterations proposed as the pay of the lowest grade of clerks would be raised and the number of appointments carrying Rs. 50 and upwards per mensem would be increased. Further one of the superintendents in the administrative branch has earned full pension and retires before long in any case.

19. In conclusion, with reference to the fact that the proposals now submitted contain no reference to the clerical staff of the Original Side, I am to say that no action to be taken with regard to it must depend on the continuance of the fifth Puisne Judge and the decision of the important questions relating to the copyist staff on the Original Side.

Order—R. No. 566, Judicial, dated 26th April 1898.

The Honourable the Chief Justice will be requested to favour Government with the reasons for the transfer to permanent employment of some of the clerks shown as temporary in the abstract enclosed with the foregoing letter.

2. With reference to the proposal in paragraph 7 of the letter the Government will be glad to have more detailed information as to the system under which the Sutors' Funds are at present administered, and as to the financial results of the proposed change.

(True Extract.)

(Signed) A. T. ARUNDEL,
Chief Secretary.

To the Honourable the Chief Justice (with C.L.).

READ—also the following paper:—

From A. L. HANNAY, Esq., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature, to the Chief Secretary to Government, dated Madras, 29th July 1898, Ref. on Cur. No. 431.

In reply to your letter, dated 30th April 1898, transmitting to the Honourable the Chief Justice Proceedings of the Madras Government No. R. 566, Judicial, dated 26th April 1898, I am directed to forward the following remarks.

2. The temporary posts which it is proposed to make permanent are those of the cause list clerk (on Rs. 20), one attender (for the sale of printed papers, on Rs. 10) and the sense that men are employed to fill them from time to time as occasion requires, but because they are paid out of the Suitors' Translation and Printing Fund (instead of from Imperial Revenues) and are not pensionable. In other respects the posts are similar to those in the regular establishment, as men have been continuously employed to fill them for a long time past, and vacancies are filled up in the same way as in the regular staff.

3. The temporary cause list clerk has been employed since 1890. Prior to that year the civil circulation clerk attended to the preparation of the daily cause lists in addition to his circulation work; but in that year the work became so heavy partly owing to the increased number of sittings of benches and partly to the publication of weekly lists, &c., that it was found necessary to entertain a separate clerk for cause list work.

4. The attender for the sale of printed papers has been employed and paid out of the fund for 17 or 18 years.

5. The employment of the extra reader was necessitated by the fact that some of the readers provided for in the scheme of 1887 had to be put on duty in the Translation department and to assist the Vernacular record-keeper as the assistance given to those departments was found to be insufficient.

6. Experience having shown that the permanent employment of these additional hands is necessary, it is now proposed to make their so-called temporary posts permanent and consequently pensionable. It is hoped that by this means a better class of the posts will be pensionable will be an incentive to good work.

7. Mr. Cowie, in paragraph 7 of his letter now under consideration, proposes to retain the six translators at present employed and to entrust them with the preparation of Privy Council cases in addition to their other work, the fees paid by suitors for the preparation of such cases being credited to Government. In paragraph 2 of the Proceedings to which this is a reply, the Government asks for information as to the system under which the Suitors' Fund to which these fees are credited, is administered and as to the financial results of the above proposal. It may be remarked in Mr. Cowie's letter, as being paid from the Suitors' Translation Fund, are in reality part of the permanent staff paid by Government, on whose behalf a sum of Rs. 222 monthly is paid from the Translation (now Translation and Printing) Fund on account of salary and pensionary contribution under an arrangement sanctioned in 1887.

8. The Civil Courts Deposits Fund consists of sums deposited under the Code of Civil Procedure for preparation of records and for security in appeals to the Privy Council and of sums paid in suits or appeals in the High Court, under orders of the system laid down by the late Mr. Clogstoun in the enclosure to G.O., No. 1951, dated 18th October 1883, in connection with which G.O., No. 2766, Judicial, dated 18th October 1883, should be read.

The Printing and Translation Funds, mentioned in the correspondence printed in the first quoted Government Order, have been amalgamated since last year and are kept separate from the Civil Courts Deposits as they are under the absolute control of the High Court (vide G.O., No. 1951, paragraph 1).

All monies received on account of the Civil Courts Deposits Fund are paid into the Madras Bank, entered in public accounts and are subject to audit by the Accountant-General, to whom accounts are furnished.

9. The statement which accompanies this letter shows the amount of fees received during the last five years for the preparation of records in appeal to the Privy Council and the amount expended in printing, transmitting the records to England and in payment to translators (column 6). The increase in payments for translation in the last two years is due to the fact that in and prior to 1895 bench clerks and translators were allowed to do Privy Council cases at their leisure and in consequence the outturn was very variable. Now, however, special attention is paid to work of this kind and it is not likely that the amounts paid for translation will again fall as low as in 1893-94 and 1895-96. Taking the average earnings for the five years at Rs. 1,700 in round figures it is apparent that they will more than pay for the full time of two translators on Rs. 60 per mensem.

Or, looking at the proposal from another point of view, a translator should be able to dispose of six pages at least per day or 1,320 pages a year of 220 working days. Each page consists of 175 words and, at the rate of 240 words per rupee, costs the suitor Rs. 11-8. A translator should, therefore, earn Rs. 962-8-0 per year, while his pay of Rs. 60 per mensem only amounts to Rs. 720, thus leaving a margin of saving to the Government.

10. This proposition assumes that there will be continuous work throughout the year, and it may safely be assumed that such will be the case as the number of appeals filed in the last two years has increased as compared with those of previous years.

There is another point which requires consideration as affecting the amount earned by translation of Privy Council cases and it is this; whenever work on the Original Side falls short, the result is that additional work is thrown on the Appellate Side office, and as the number of bench clerks has been reduced from eight to six, it is probable that it will be found necessary at times to employ translators to attend court and in examining decrees and the Privy Council work will consequently have to be temporarily stopped. This difficulty can, however, be met by employing at such times experienced additional translators and by taking on new men to do the ordinary translation work.

ORDER—No. 1525, Judicial, dated 28th September 1898.

It is observed that the Suitors' Fund now bears the cost of the temporary establishment, amounting to Rs. 85 per mensem. As the work of this establishment will in future be attended to by the permanent establishment of the court, the Government considers that $\frac{1}{2}$ monthly contribution of Rs. 85 should be made from this fund towards the maintenance of the permanent establishment. Subject to this remark, the proposals submitted in Mr. Cowie's letter of the 17th February last for the reorganization of the clerical and menial staff of the High Court are approved and the proposition statement will be transferred to the Financial Department.

2. The Honourable the Chief Justice will be requested to be so good as to cause information to be furnished to Government as to the progress that has been made in giving effect to the reorganization of the interpreter's establishment sanctioned in G.Os., No. 1191, dated 3rd June 1895, and No. 164, dated 27th January 1896.
