all descriptions employed in the office of the Accountant General, Bombay. The circumstances which require that the peons in other offices should be clothed at Government expense apply equally to my peons who serve under similar conditions and on the same rates of pay. The peons of this office do not dress properly and with their small rates of pay it is impossible to expect them to do so. and I consider that they should be suitably dressed like the peons of other offices.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your Most Obedt Servant.

It is not clear whether the Accd. Genl: wishes all the peons in his office and in the Paper Currency office to be clothed. In the Secretariat offices, only a certain number of peons are treated as dress peons. The A.G. may, it is submitted, be consulted in the 17.11.98 No 4, dy 2-1-99 A.G. n.o.

M With copy od G.O.No. 1036, Pub., dated 4th August 1897.

Sir,

At the request of the local Accountant-General and with reference to art. 98 (ii) of the Civil Account Code, I am directed to request that a sp. for sanction to the extension to the peons of the office of the Accountant-General, Madras and of the Currency Office of the rules issued by this Govt. for the supply of of liveries to inferior servants. The peons in most of the principal offices in this Presidency are supplied with clothing according to sanctioned scales, and it is understood that the Govt. of India has sanctioned the supply of liveries to peons of all descriptions employed in the office of the Account-ant-General, Bombay. The Accountant-General represents that his office peons are at present not properly clad and that with their small pay it is impossible to expect them to be suitably dressed. He considers that it will be sufficient if the concession is extended to peons attached to officers only i.e. to 12 peons in the Accountant-General's Office and to 2 in the Currency Office.
