representation of backward classes in Govt service it was considered that while it was essential that there should be in the public service a fair representation of all communities, it was not desirable to fix any definite proportion for particular castes. There is already a standing rule requiring that the principal appointments in a district should be distributed among the different castes & that no caste should be allowed to enjoy a monopoly of the chief ministerial appointments. The attention of heads of offices was drawn in 1912 to this rule. We may merely say that the matter is receiving attention.

This particular answer has received considerable attention in the Press. We are doing our best to equalise the castes but naturally it takes time. For orders of the H.M. desires any special instructions to issue? I can think of none.
