Memorandum from the Government of India, Foreign and Political Department, No. 1966-G., dated Simla, the 21st October 1918.

A case has recently occurred in which certain ladies who had been granted passports to the United Kingdom endorsed "Valid for the journey to England via route for time being permissible under Admiralty instructions" were allowed to embark on a ship proceeding via Colombo, on the understanding that they should tranship there if the ship were to proceed through the Mediterranean. The ship proceeded by the Mediterranean and the ladies having continued their journey in her despite instructions to the contrary were forced to disembark at Port Said. The Admiralty desire that steps should be taken to ensure the transshipment at Colombo of ladies not authorized to travel through the Mediterranean when the ship in which they commence their voyage is ordered to proceed through the Mediterranean.

The Admiralty desire that steps should be taken to ensure the transshipment at Colombo of ladies not authorised to travel through the Mediterranean, when the ship in which they commence their voyage is ordered to proceed through the Mediterranean. Perhaps, in all future cases of grant of passports to ladies ~~for~~ travelling to the United Kingdom ^{by the route permissible} a para may be added in the following terms, in the order granting or endorsing a passport. "If the bearer embarks on a ship proceeding via Colombo, she should transship there, when the ship is ordered to proceed through the Mediterranean".
