ENCLOSURE

Letter—from the United States Ambassador, London.
To—the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, London.
Dated—the 25th September 1918.
No.—1256.

Under instructions from my Government, I have the honour to acquaint you that the Department of State, on the 25th of July last, resumed the use of the passport form known as 'special passport' which will hereafter be issued to high officials of the United States Government, subordinate consular officers and other persons travelling on official business who have no diplomatic status. These passports are of the same form as diplomatic passports, but the words 'special passport' are substituted for the words 'passport diplomatique'. The latter form will be issued only to persons having a diplomatic status and to principal consular officers.

In accordance with my Government's instruction, I venture to request that persons bearing special passports may be afforded such courtesies by the competent authorities of His Majesty's Government as may be due to persons travelling on official business.

Should a diplomatic visa be requested of this Embassy on behalf of British subjects desirous of proceeding to the United States, I have the honour to request that application for such visa may be submitted as well in advance of the individual's departure as may be convenient.
