I, Brevet-Lieutenant Colonel Robert McCarrison, Indian M cal Service, Pasteur Institute of Southern India, Coonoor, do he by certify that Mr.C.S.Waite of the Indian State Railways, is in bad state of health, and I solemnly and sincerely declare that, according to the best of my judgment, a change of air is essentially necessary to his recovery, and do therefore recommend that he may be permitted to proceed to England.

The Pasteur Institute of S.India,

Coonoor, 28th August 1919.

Mr.C.S.Waite, of the Indian State Railways, has been under my care since February 1919, suffering from severe lymphangitis of the right leg. When I first saw him, the leg was greatly swollen and chronically inflamed as high up as the middle of the thigh. He suffered from periodic attacks of fever recurring with regularity once a month.

The state of lymphangitis made its appearance after a fall astride a plank bridge while on service in Mesopotamia.

The history of his case and repeated blood examinations led me to the conclusion that the lymphangitis was the result of a staphylococcic infection--a conclusion also reached by Sir.Leonard Rogers in Calcutta.

In addition to the lymphangitis he had a chronic and extremely indolent ulcer on the ear, lip, back of right hand and neck which have been extremely difficult to heal, that on the lip and hand still persisting.

Treatment by autogenous vaccination was persisted in for a time without beneficial result. Later a prolonged course of saomin was tried but without marked effect.

Finally, strict dietetic treatment and injection of collosol manganese were employed with good result, the leg now being considerably reduced in size, and the intervals at which fever was wont to occur have become more prolonged.

A point has, however, been reached at which no further improvement is possible by therapeutic means available in India.

I consider it essential that Mr.Waite should proceed to England at Once, there to undergo a course of treatment at the Radium Institute. If this treatment does not further improve the leg, it will be necessary to have an extensive operation performed with a view to restoring the lymphatic circulation of the limb

I am strongly of opinion that his continued residence in India is very risky, for any slight injury may cause in his case a flare up of the staphylococcic infection with general septicaemia.

1st. September. 1919.

Mr.C.S.Waite Indian State Railways has been under my treatment since April 1919, having been handed over to me by Major. - Willcocks I.M.S., who had been treating him from February 1919.

My treatment of Mr.Waite has been in conjunction with that of Lieut.Col.R.McCarrison I.M.S.,

Mr.Waite has been suffering and is still suffering from an attack of severe lymphangitis of the right leg accompanied by - Staphylococcic infection with ulcers. The lymphangitis dates from and is due in my opinion to at accident while on Field Service in Mesopotamia, and has been aggravated by imperative duties connected with his work in India.

The condition under treatment has shown improvement, but - there is still considerable interference with the lymphatic flow. The inflammation though reduced still necessitates absolute rest, and as little movement to the limb as possible.

I am strongly of opinion that nothing more can be done for him in India, and a change to England is absolutely necessary, if the use of his leg is to be attained.

I therefore recommend he be granted leave to England at once where the further necessary treatment can be obtained.
