Madura

Collector's Office,

Dated the 30th January 1919.

My dear Mr. Machandara,

A lady who has been in England

propounds to me the following problem. She wishes to be married shortly to a soldier who goes home separately on a troop ship immediately afterwards. She wants to follow him on another ship at once and should be ready with her passport before wedding. Unfortunately her name before and after will be different. What should she do? I suggest that she should send the application to Government through me in her maiden name mentioning her future marriage name and as soon as she sends the telegram that she is safely married, you send her the passport in her married name.

The difficulty about this is that she may have trouble in getting the passage if she has only the promise of a passport. Could this difficulty be got over? and if not could she ~~could she~~ ^{travel} as a married woman with a passport issued in her name. I don't see why she should not.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir,

With reference to your letter to Mr. Ramachandra Rao of 30th Jan. 19. I am to state that the lady referred to may, as suggested by you, apply for a passport in the name which she will assume on her marriage. The passport will be issued to her as soon as she intimates that she is married. ~~Celebration of the event.~~

As regards passage I am to state there will not be any difficulty about obtaining a priority Certificate before she provides herself with a passport.

Yours faithfully,
