In November 1855, Government was pleased, under the circumstances stated in the then Judges' letter of the 14th of the same month, to sanction the services of fifteen additional Writers at a similar rate, for preparing the Report for that year. The expenses incurred for preparing the Reports for the years 1856 and 1857 respectively, were defrayed from the stoppages made out of the salaries of the absentees in the office; but we have not the means of doing so now, as such stoppages are carried to the credit of Government, under the Uncovenanted Service Absentee Rules.
