Chief Ju. Judges that, under these circumstances it would be prof. able to refuse to for privilege leave, and compensate Civil and Session Judges in some measure for the loss of such leave. Adding weeks to the present adjournment, thus extending it to the full period provided by Section III, Regulation III of 1816, viz. two months -

Under this arrangement the Government would be relieved of the difficulty, so often experienced, of appointing officers to act for Civil and Session Judges during their absence on privilege leave, and inconvenience to suitors arising from a constant change of Judges would be avoided.

7. As regards the Session, which would thus be deferred the second month, it is to be observed that 1844 would on 1 occur once as an exceptional case; while in general, as appears from notification published at page 2863 of the Calcutta Gazette of 13th instant, Sess.
