Budget of charges for 1863-64.

ORDER THEREON, 31st January 1863, No. 221.

1. With reference to paragraphs 6 and 7 of the Proceedings above recorded, the Government observe that the principle which they wished the Board to observe was to blend under the head "Talook Establishments" all Officers performing Revenue and Magisterial duties jointly. The Sub-Magistrates with a few exceptions exercise Revenue and Magisterial functions, just as Tahsildars do, and there is no reason why they should be differently classed in the Budget. The term "Magisterial Establishments" as applied to these Officers and their establishments is in

TALOOK ESTABLISHMENT.

Tahsildars or Talook Magistrates from Rs. 150 to Rs. 250.
Deputy Tahsildars or Sub-Magistrates from Rupees 50 to Rupees, 100.
Gumasthas and Clerks from Rs. 10 to Rs. 55.
Servants.
Contingencies.

fact erroneous, and likely to mislead. If correct the charge ought to be transferred entirely to "Law and Justice," but as already pointed out the Officers do Revenue as well as Magisterial duty and should therefore be included in the Talook establishment as shown in the margin.

2. The "Special Joint Magistrates" perform no Revenue duties at all, their salaries therefore have no place in the Revenue Budget.

3. There is no necessity for any change in the mode of debiting "Law and Justice" with its share ($\frac{1}{4}$ th) of the joint Land Revenue establishments. It would be impossible to determine how much of a Tahsildar's time is devoted to Magisterial work, and the simplest plan is to take, as proposed, a portion of the whole joint establishment charge, on the principle of an average. Taking one Officer with another, probably $\frac{1}{4}$ th of the whole joint charge is a sufficiently accurate approximation.

4. The item of District Post Saderwarid has, the Government observe, been entered in the Budget by the Accountant General.

The other parts of the Board's Proceedings need no remark.
