Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Works Department, 2nd July 1866.

No. 1. Read the following letter from the Inspector General of Jails, to the Secretary to Government, Public Works Department, dated Madras, 21st June 1866, No. 33:—

Judicial Department, 6th June 1866, No. 906, and 13th June 1866, No. 931. 1. With reference to the Orders of Government noted in the margin, I have the honor to bring to your notice certain points in the construction of the buildings in the new Central Jail at Rajahmundry, and to request you will be good enough to issue instructions on the subject to the Executive Officer.

2. I am informed that it was originally intended to divide the radial blocks of cells longitudinally by walls, in order to introduce the separate system, and with that object in view iron barred swing-doors have been placed at each end of the present cells, but this arrangement is objectionable, and it is very desirable that all the swing-doors on one side should be fixed, if such has not already been done. To attempt to secure them by padlocks would not be satisfactory, and would entail additional duty on the warders.

3. Whether the lateral grated apertures in the barracks be called doors or windows, there ought to be only one place of egress and ingress in each ward, and wherever it is possible, the entrances should be on the side furthest from the contiguous block or barrack.

4. The wards and cells should be furnished with a night laterine as in the Central Jail plan.

5. With reference to our conversation of yesterday regarding the Jailers' quarters, I concur in the opinion that a house on the plan of that recently sanctioned for Parwuttypoor slightly enlarged will be sufficient, and if you will favor me with a plan thereof I will submit it to Government.

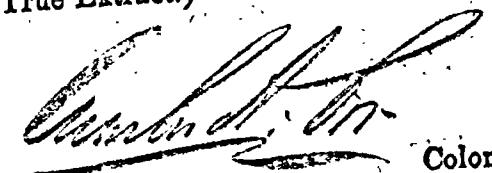

6. In my letter published with the Proceedings of Government, dated 13th instant, I omitted to make any remark upon the accommodation for women, as shown in the plan of the Superintending Engineer, viz., a barrack of four wards, each to contain 21 persons after allowing space for a night laterine. Judging from former returns, I believe that for the present, at all events, a barrack of two wards of the same dimensions will be ample. A laterine for the women might be constructed in one of the angles of the enclosure with reference to the prevailing winds.

No. 2. ORDER THEREON, 2nd July 1866, No. 2,063.

CIVIL WORKS, No. 1.

Communicated to the Superintending Engineer of the 1st Division, who will provide for the several improvements referred to in this letter in the revised estimate which has been called for in Proceedings No. 1,968, dated 22nd June 1866.

(True Extract.)

Colonel, R. E.,
Secretary to Government.

To the Superintending Engineer, 1st Division.
