SIR,

I have the honor to state that as Bimlipatam is a port in which vessels carrying British and foreign crews, often call, it is necessary that the Port officer should be able to deal with refractory seamen, the Sub Magistrate of this port not being empowered to deal with European British subjects. I therefore request that Government may be pleased to invest Captain H. J. Boas the port officer with powers of a 1st class Magistrate for the trial of offences against sections 323, 325, 352, 358, 379 and 380 of the Indian Penal Code which may be committed by European British subjects within the limits of the town and port of Bimlipatam and under the acts and rules specified below.

- Act X of 1841 (Ships Registration Act)
- Act XXIII of 1876 (Indian Merchant Seamen Act)

and Quarantine rules under Act I of 1870 and also of offences under Sections 379, 380, & 381 I.P.C. which may be committed by boatmen within the same limits.

The taking of Bimlipatam is a 3rd class mag.

Submitted to H.M. as it is doubtful whether an officer of such limited experience should be made a Justice of the Peace.
