SIR,

The subregistry office at Talajaganagar in the North Arcot district, which has been built according to the Standard design of 1888, consists of two rooms, one measuring 24 ft x 12 ft, and the other 24 x 9 ft, in the first of which the subregistrar and his 5 clerks (inclusive of the temporary clerk) sit with their tables and chairs, while in the other the subregistrar's record almirahs are kept. When I last inspected the office, I found that the accommodation was entirely insufficient and that the subregistrar, his clerks and the parties resorting for registration were all put to great inconvenience for want of space. The subregistrar and the District Registrar urge for additional accommodation being provided for at an early date. In these circumstances, I have the honor
