With reference to G.O. 15 November 1894
No. 2773, I have the honour to resubmit the Plans and Estimates for the improvement of the Coonoor Subjail revised as directed. They were received from the Superintending Engineer only on the 26th instant.

2. The amount of the Estimate has been reduced from Rs 4,100 to Rs 3,820. In countersigning it, I beg to submit the following remarks for the consideration of Government:-

- (1). It is proposed to build the extension to the Subjail with country-brick in chumam, plastered with 2 coats of chumam. It would, in my opinion, be preferable to use table-moulded bricks in chumam, pointed, and thus to avoid any necessity for plastering. By so doing the item of Rs 232 for plastering would be saved, and would go towards the higher cost of

+ Rs 15 for whitewash

of platform-made bricks, while future outlay on renewal of the plastering, which is perpetually necessary, would be avoided.

(2). It is proposed to build the Latrine likewise of country-brick in chunam, plastered. In my opinion it is unnecessary to plaster the Latrine. Country-brick in chunam would do quite well, and this would save Rs 32.

(3). It is also proposed to roof both the extension to the Subjail and the Latrine with corrugated iron sheets under pau-tiles. This is suitable for the extension, but it is quite unnecessary to place pau-tiles over the corrugated iron roof of the Latrine. Some saving might be effected here.

(4). 10 galvanized iron-buckets are provided for the Latrine. These buckets will be, I think, too high for convenient use, and earthen mullais or pans would be better and cheaper.

(5). The glass-roofing for the verandah is enormously expensive. I see no sufficient reason why the roof of the verandah should not be of corrugated iron only. This would reduce the estimate by about Rs 300. If glass is necessary at all, it could certainly be confined to that portion of the verandah which will form a passage between the old wards and the new.

(6). The Cook-house ought to have a proper chimney chimney, and not merely a range with a hole above it. There is no difficulty in constructing the chimney along the rear-wall of the Cook-house. The design shown in the plan is that customarily adopted in English-built houses in India, and is as bad as possible. The range is too high, and should be reduced to 3 feet, the arch-work at the bottom is not needed, the fire-holes are too small and there is no draught. The design is faulty, and it would be well that it should be removed from the Public Works Curriculum, and a better one adopted.

3. Referring to paragraph 2 of G.O. 15th November 1894, No. 2773, I beg to state that the room through which the section A-B runs is the Police Station room and is needed for the custody of arms, handcuffs, registers etc.

4. Immediately above the Public Road, marked on the site-plan; stand the Police Lines in which the whole or a large part of

of the Police of Coonoor live with their families.

The only Latrine they possess is that marked A, which is very small, badly-designed, and totally inadequate for such a number of persons. A proper corrugated-iron Latrine should be provided above the road for the Police-Lives, and the new Subjail Latrine should then be built on the site of the Latrine A, the old materials of which could be utilized. The site proposed for the new Latrine, 45 feet from the main-building, is still unduly close.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

MEMORANDUM.

Ootacamund
Dated Madras, 11th October 1895.

In returning the papers received with judicial Department endorsement N^o. 833 dated 20th April 1895, the undersigned has the honor to forward a revised estimate amounting to Rs. 3920 for extending and improving the Police station and subjail at Coonoor, and to submit the following remarks with reference to para 2 of letter from the Inspector General of Prisons N^o. 1767 dated 28th March 1895.

Clause (1). The proposal to build the extension to the subjail with table-moulded bricks in chunam, pointed, instead of with country-brick in chunam plastered, will involve an excess over the estimate of about Rs. 840, and both on account of the cost and because the extension will not be keeping with the rest of this building, it does not seem desirable to make any alteration in the original estimate.

Clause (2). Here again too it does not seem desirable to make any alteration. In this, and in the case referred to in clause (1), the question of pointing or plastering should be left to the Executive Engineer's discretion. It is possible that the bricks will not be of good enough quality to take the pointing, and if not, the work must be plastered.

Clause (3). No alteration is necessary, as by omitting the tiles, a saving of only Rs. 4 will be effected.

on the whole work.

Clause (4). The Inspector General's remarks are concurred in, and the iron buckets have been omitted in the revised estimate.

Clause (5). Glass roofing in front of each cell door only is necessary, and provision has been made accordingly.

Clause (6). The Inspector General's remarks are concurred in, and the design of the fireplace has been altered. The range as designed would be too high, and it has been reduced to $3\frac{1}{4}$ feet. The archway at the bottom of the fireplace is intended as a recess for storing fuel, but as the Inspector General does not consider it necessary it has been omitted.
