FOR ORDERS.

~~It is to be further stated that gain~~
~~the 5 feet required~~ ~~for the 5 feet room~~ They may do it as they like but the Vakil's room have at least 18' x 15' - Personally I should get the 5 feet by altering the plan by carrying the wall marked 8' high straight back across the head clerk's room - The judge's sitting room is then removed to the left & room be so made to extend the Vakil's room - The head clerk would then have 15' x 12', the judge 15' x 10' 9" & the Vakil's 18' x 15' - If this is understood let me have a bit of tracing paper & I will draw it - I don't want to scribble on the plan sent up.

Attention is invited to H. M.'s remarks in C. No. 3592 in which S. O. d. 19. Aug. 95. No 1733 was based. May the addition to the ^{clerk's} changing & Ganestah's room be sanctioned?

Resubmitted. The method suggested would however prevent the judge's sitting room having a window of the present size looking onto the front verandah, & if any window at all could be put there it would be a small one too up one corner of the room.
But perhaps H. M. thought

RS

that this did not matter as long as the vakils had 18' x 15'.

W. D. King A piece of tracing paper is put up 25/11/95.

The enclosed rough tracing will indicate what I mean - I think it could be worked out. I don't intend to give exact dimensions, for the doors or windows or to have spaced doors & windows properly.

Order of 5 Dec. 95, No. 2524

The Govt. will leave it to the Consulting Architect to arrange for the provision of the additional accommodation in the manner which may appear to him to be most suitable. It seems, however, that instead of altering the length of the gumbastah's room it would be practicable to increase the accommodation for the vakils to 18' x 15' without impairing the symmetry of the building by carrying the 8' wall between the Head Clerk's & the Judge's sitting rooms straight through the former from the point where it now joins the wall of the court (thus reducing the size of this room) & by then moving the Judge's room to the left (in the plan) to a sufficient distance to leave a space of 15' x 18' for the vakils' room.
