are given. The latter practice in the Civil Courts to which the petro have no access and they cannot be expected to come to the Criminal Courts for small fees. But for the petro the parties to Criminal Courts will have to suffer much loss and inconvenience. Besides this, the Court is benefitted by the existence of Private vakils, which it will not otherwise be. Poor people invariably spend some money in stampo for vakalathnama to private vakils in all criminal cases. But the number of vakalats and consequently the money spent in stampo will be reduced if pleaders alone are made to appear for all criminal cases. The Certified pleaders are under the impression that the existence of private vakils prevents them from demanding of the parties arbitrarily what fees they like. They are now therefore unjustly striving to drive the petro off the criminal Courts too. If Court favours them at stampo many poor litigants will suffer and the families of many in this presidency who live by "private practice" will become hopeless of maintenance. Private vakils are prepared to go from one taluk magistrate to another and also follow the Camps of the Divisional Magistrates Court when it is on circuit. But certified pleaders will not do this and will rarely consent to leave the Munsiff and the Sessions Courts. Under these circumstances poor people if private vakils are not available. No confidence was placed in the abilities & discretion of private vakils. The High Court in 1875 or 1876 sent for a list of all those practising in Courts than the Sessions Courts in the Presidency. From this fact that of their being favoured is. Certificates from the Magistrate their capabilities will be evident. The contention of the pleaders that the private vakils are ignorant of law and cannot plead accurately, is unbelievable. The petro therefore pray that the above facts may be considered along with the rule which lays down that private vakils can practice in any Criminal Court with the permission of the Magistrate of that Court and that no danger may be caused to their present position which is a source of maintaining their large families.
