Note.

The estimate provides also for the construction of a compound wall with a gate. But as the estimate is not on the whole excessive, sub. it may be approved; vide G.O. 754:12.4.93 on the point.

It also provides for zinc-sheeting to the roof of the Record Room. In counterbalancing the estimate which provides for zinc sheeting to observe that it appeared to be that a wall would be the long run be not economical. I was

But for my part I think a compound
wall will be much better where it can be afforded. It keeps out cattle & sheep better than a wire fence & in the long run will be cheaper.
Compound walls used when most cases be expensive brick & cham section.
Brick in mud with brick in cham coping will generally suffice, a rough stone may be used.

compound walls and hedges (regarding which latter I had said nothing) and that he fully agreed.
Thus being the case it would be as well if orders issued that no standards for buildings of the nature of compound walls should contain masonry but compound walls & that wire fencing should always be used.
