At the Comm: points out, Mr Simpson can easily enough get down to London and then find any amount of capital in which to take passage to England. This is the daughter of his is something new. He all talks of wanting more time than the leave allowed to appeal: he has no case and even if he had he could easily get his appeal prepared, printed and submitted within three months: he apparently wishes to see what the effect of a little "bounce" will be.

I quite agree. He will be advised to proceed in preparation immediately - the best way to him

From

Deputy

THE COMMISSIONER OF POLICE,

MADRAS,

To

The Chief Secretary

to Government

Madras.

Sir,

Adverting to Confidential G.O. No. 99, Judicial, dated the 21st January 1897, and G.O. No. 179 dated the 6th instant, which though marked "Urgent" was received by me on only the 9th instant, I have the honor to apply, under respectful protest, for the furlough the Government has directed me to ask for in its earlier order above quoted, preparatory to compulsory retirement on the 5th July 1897.

2. Immediately on receipt of G.O. No. 99 and prior to sending in my letter No. 27 dated the 29th January 1897, asking for a reconsideration of that G.O., and pointing out the great hardships I would have to undergo if compelled to leave India for only the few months required to complete my service for pension. I enquired of the Agents of the P. and O. Company and ascertained that I could not get berths (second saloon) for my daughter and myself in any steamer before the 4th April 1897, and even then in only the lower deck cabins. Not only have I been refused by Government the two years furlough applied for, but I am being forced to travel against my will, with a sick daughter in such bad accommodation.

3. Even if I could have secured accommodation in an earlier boat I could not possibly have left Madras without serious inconvenience and pecuniary loss, for I have my carriages and horses and other cattle as well as a large collection of household property to dispose of, but as the G.O. was so peremptory, I resolved in compliance therewith, to proceed on furlough (which must be taken out of India as indicated by the Accountant General in his reply to a reference from me) as early as as I could, but owing to circumstances beyond my control failed to secure the necessary passages before the 4th April 1897.

4. I have earned and am entitled to the two years furlough ^{have} asked for and I beg permission to say here that while I served from 1st July 1875 to 30th September 1882 as household Intendant with the Political Officer in charge of the ex-Gachwar of Baroda, I contributed one-fifth of my salary, namely Rs 87-8-0 per mensem towards such furlough. I solicited the furlough not only to enable me to secure a better pension for which I have served nearly 32 years, but also with a view to prepare and print in England my appeal to the Government of India against the conclusions arrived at by the Government, as I could not have the time to do so before the 5th July, the date on which I have been directed to retire from the service.

5. Under the foregoing circumstances I therefore now apply, but under respectful protest, for the furlough I am directed to take from the 4th of April 1897, with such preparatory leave as I may be entitled to.

6. In the course of my long service of of 32 years I have had only four months privilege and ten days casual leave and no furlough whatever.

I have the honour to be

Sir

Your most obedient servant

Shud. Simpson
