RESOLUTION.—In a Despatch, dated the 21st March 1881, the Government of India invited the attention of the Home Government to the existing practice whereby the appointment of Government Solicitors at the three Presidencies rests with Her Majesty's Secretary of State, and urged, for reasons stated, that the power of appointment might conveniently be transferred to the Governments in India. In his Despatch of the 7th July last, the Secretary of State has agreed to leave the appointments in question in the hands of the Governments concerned; but His Lordship adds that whenever a Local Government, having a difficulty in finding a suitable officer, is desirous of obtaining a Solicitor from England, application should be made to the Secretary of State to supply the vacancy. According to this decision, future appointments to the office of Government Solicitor at Madras and Bombay will be made by the respective Local Governments, the Solicitor to Government at Calcutta being appointed by the Government of India. In other respects the status of the offices in question will remain unchanged.
