Sir

With reference to our recent conversation, I would point out that a fair trial extending over about two years has been given to the system of a native midwife here, but the result has not been startlingly encouraging. During my recent visit to Kochi I was impressed with the idea that if we could obtain the services of one of the nurses employed at the Residency we might compensate ourselves.

I think a woman of Mrs. Harris's stamp would be likely to be a success as a midwife, and a help in
