It is presumed that the "toties" employed removed both fœcal matter and rubbish. By what methods transport from the town was accomplished should however have been reported. This was required in last years remarks on this festival (vide G.O. dated 18th July 1895, No. 1265 L.). The efforts made show an improvement upon the preceding year. But, it must still be held that conservancy arrangements are incomplete. Granting that the staff of toties could not be increased on account of defective supply, it ought still to have been possible to have arranged for a greater number of latrines than eight for 40,000 persons. At the least, also, the three watchmen for the drinking water tanks should have been doubled to allow of the men being at intervals off duty.
