To

The Personal Assistant to the Plague Commissioner,

Sir,

I am sorry to inform you that I have been arrested by a Girl — yesterday evening at 4.45 P.M. — warrant. I humbly beg to request that you will be good enough to grant me leave for 3 days from this date to enable me to make some arrangements.

I beg to remain
Sir,
Your most obedient Servant
D. Narasimulu Lyengar

What is the width of this? Is that is your total Jaffais now? Have you availed yourself of the Doctors aid & what are your total Debts? Long

Ramaswami Chetti and V. V. Ramanujachari, who were then conducting business as Cloth Merchants. These persons were helping me now and then with petty loans which I was then forced to contract owing to the reasons above stated and also to meet the marriage expenses of my younger brother. In return to this timely help, which they were then giving, I used to write their accounts and letters on behalf of them whenever I happened to go to their shops or houses. The total amount of these petty loans thus contracted I cannot now definitely say; but, I think, it would have amounted to nearly 600 Rs and odd. As the above said Chitty Ramaswami Chetti and V. V. Ramanujachari have suddenly closed their business in the middle of this year, their various Creditors wanted to take action against them for their dues to them. Certain letters written by the said Ramaswami Chetti & V. V. Ramanujachari to some of the Creditors being in my writing and certain portions of their accounts also being in my handwriting owing to the circumstances above stated, the Creditors, who sued them in the Civil case in which I was arrested by warrant the other day, has included my name also as one of the defendants. The amount decreed in the said suit was Rs 400 and odd. As the other two defendants, the real debtors, have absconded, the plaintiff chose to arrest me; hoping, he thought, that, being a Government servant and the cousin of a High Court Vakil he could easily recover his money. As I had really no hand in the business in connection with which the debt was contracted and as my connection with the said Chitty Ramaswami Chetti and V. V. Ramanuja Chari is the piecemeal service I have been doing in the way of writing accounts and letters whenever I happened to go to them for petty and timely loans, I applied to the Insolvent Court for a protection order which the Court has been pleased to grant. I don't know to what amount the said two persons are still liable to their other Creditors; but as I fear that their other creditors, if any, will also include my name as a Co-defendant in any suit which they might might bring on the ground that either the letter or the portion of the account is in my handwriting I have included in my Insolvent Schedule all the amounts covered either by letters written in my hand or which have been entered in the accounts by me. Such sums have amounted to Rs 4000/- in all. I am sure the other creditors will not include me as a defendant, as they know well that I am not in any way connected with their business. But for the sake of avoiding all trouble, if any such contingency happens through the instigation of any body, I have included those debts also in the Schedule.

I beg to remain

Sir,

Your most obedient servant.

He is clerk on Rs 20 in the Land Revenue Dept of the Board's office. Perhaps that office may not take any action on the ground that he is serving in another office.

Report

NOTE FOR THE Judge Court

1. On the 9th of this month M. V. Narasimha Iyengar, the despatching clerk of this office asked for 2 days' Casual leave. On the following day, he sent an application for 3 days' further leave on the ground that he had been arrested by a Civil warrant. After 4 days' absence, he returned duty at 12.15 P.M. on the 13th. His letter below shows his state of affairs, but it does not seem likely that he could have got involved into a debt of Rs 4000 simply by assisting in writing letters and accounts for the shop keepers. Perhaps Letters a partner and the result of the proceedings in the insolvent Court has to be awaited.

Meanwhile the papers are submitted for orders with reference to rules 43 & 44 contained in G.O. No 912 Public dy 15-7-98.

On a previous occasion, the Clerk was suspended for going to the Insolvent
