FOR ORDERS.

4th Oct 98

In the evening I inspected the camp near Timmercherla. There is, first, a camp with 23 tents pitched some by people living here and some by a sanitary inspector. The tents, many of them require looking into as the ridge poles in some cases have been broken. They should be if possible be repaired & the tent carefully & kept in order. I went on to Timmercherla village. Disinfection is in progress there with coolies. Care should be taken that the floors are thoroughly drenched with disinfecting fluid before the earth is removed and the existing practice under which the earth is carried outside the village street there should be stopped at once.

The earth should be burnt in the village ~~village~~ ^{street} near the house.
It is very dangerous to carry the infectious earth about the streets. It is particularly requested that this matter may be looked into. As regards the houses in which the roof has been removed & holes have been made in the walls & the floor has been dug out in the case of those houses which belong to the very poorest classes some compensation may be given for damage done. But in all other cases the owner should be left to bear the small expense of replacing the floor & repairing the ~~holes~~ ⁱⁿ walls.
The roofs in all cases ^{sh} be repaired before the houses are handed over.
The work of disinfection in this village should receive the special attention of the Deputy Collyer Mr. Marshall.
I went on to the health camp. This place is about a mile & half from the village & contains 30 sheds & 40 tents with about 150 people in the camp. There have been no cases of fever or plague here.

It will be well to select a spot just outside this camp & put up there one or two tents for any suspicious cases that may arise, as observation sheds. As soon as ^{the} disinfection of the houses in the village is completed the question of letting the inhabitants to go to their houses will come up. No house should be allowed to be occupied unless 21 days have elapsed since inhabitants left it.
