Report on the Adi Festival, Srivilliputtūr, for the year 1897.

District.	Name of reporter.	Name of festival.	Date of festival.	Number assembled.	Accommodation and sanitary arrangements made.	Water-supply.	Conservancy.	Epidemics.	General health.	Recommendations.	Remarks.
Tinnevely.	S. J. Mullens, Civil Apothecary, Srivilliputtūr.	Adi Festival, Srivilliputtūr.	24th July to 9th August 1897.	28,000.	No special accommodation was provided for the pilgrims and visitors who, as usual, found shelter in matams, chattrams, private houses and hotels. Persons from neighbouring villages returned to their homes daily. Cleanliness of the town was insisted on, streets were swept twice in the morning and once in the evening and all the rubbish removed to the rubbish depots. The town was inspected by me both morning and evening and necessary instructions were given to the sanitary establishment to keep the town as clean as possible. The Chairman, Municipal Council, also often went out on sanitary inspection.	The supply was chiefly obtained from a large tank called Thirumukkulam, which was guarded against pollution by watchmen, and from numerous private and public fresh-water wells having drains, parapet walls and platforms. Two water-pandals were maintained, where the people largely collected, in addition to the three permanent ones already existing.	Seven temporary latrines in addition to the six permanent ones and six temporary urinals were erected and these were cleaned very frequently. Five sweepers and ten scavengers, against three sweepers and seven scavengers in the previous year, were temporarily employed in addition to the permanent establishment of 28 sweepers, ten scavengers and four private scavengers. Four temporary sanitary ponds were added to the four permanent ones and the whole establishment was supervised by a sanitary inspector and a sanitary maistry. The cattle market was cleaned daily and the sanitary maistry was in special charge of it under my direct supervision. Two night-soil carts were temporarily engaged to remove the night-soil at a distance from the town where it was buried in trenches.	Nil.	Good.	Nil.	Though the arrangements were an improvement on the previous year, the scavenging staff employed was not equal to the occasion. It should be further strengthened.
