The President,

Municipal Commission,

Madras.

Sir,

Having regard to the fact that Mussalmans form a large portion of the population and that a majority of them are as a rule ignorant, and uneducated with religious fire burning in their breasts, great care has to be exercised in dealing with them in carrying out the plague preventive measures and precautions. With this end in view it seems very desirable that a Muhammadan gentleman of official experience and tact should be deputed on plague duty, so that the feelings, wishes and the opinions of the Muhammadans may always be consulted and their religious scruples respected as far as practicable. The officer selected for this must have some status, in order to command respect and one in the grade of a Deputy Collector or a Tasildar will do well for this purpose. He should serve as a sort of connecting link between the Mussalmans on the one hand and the plague Commissioner and the President of the Municipality on the other. All complaints by Mussalmans and against them in plague matters should be referred to him for report before final disposal either by the Plague Commissioner or the President of the Municipality. He must be designated as an Assistant to the Plague Commissioner and should be fully consulted in all matters relating to Mussalmen prejudices and views. I shall be obliged if you will kindly forward this letter with your remarks to the plague Commissioner so that he may address the Government on the subject. I am convinced that if this course be adopted much of that irritation which is inseparable from the working of the Plague Regulation will to a great extent be removed.

Yours faithfully,

Mir Anwaruddien
Municipal Commissioner
