G.O., No. 1220 P., dated 3rd October 1898, paragraph 3.

G.O., Mis. No. 1422 P., dated 7th November 1898.

ABSTRACT.—Recording Proceedings of the Public Works Department, Railway, inquiring whether railway administrations, agree to allow the free use of the railway telegraph for the purpose of transmitting the names and addresses of persons re-booking.

From the Public Works Department (Railway Branch), No. 364 R.M., dated 11th November 1898.

ABSTRACT.—Stating that the Agents are unanimous in objecting to allow plague messages to be sent over their telegraph wires free.

PROCEEDINGS—No. 744, dated 19th November 1898.

If the tickets of persons from infected areas who re-book are punched or marked with the word "plague," as has recently been ordered, there is hardly any necessity for telegraphing names and addresses, and, in the few cases in which telegraphing may be necessary, the usual charge must be paid.
