SIR,

With reference to your letter No. 712 dated the 14th March 99, I have the honour to say that the Collectors will know the no. of military officers and men employed on plague duty and can estimate accordingly, whilst the actual expenditure can be communicated by you by this office when it appears in the Exchange account received from the military department.

Under these circumstances it seems hardly necessary to ask regimental disbursing officers to supply you with accounts through the collectors especially as such accounts would be
