Proceedings of the Collector of Bellary

@ 29. 3. 99.

Read the following paper proceedings of the Head Asst Collector of Bellary upon no 463 P dated 26. 3. 99:—

Read petition from the Secretary of the private plague Committee Hospet dated 22. 3. 99.

Read this Office d 46 P making certain 22. 3. 99 suggestions thereon to the Collector of Bellary through the Plague Commissioner Madras and their notes thereupon.

The points on which orders are requested seem to be four.

(1) Whether the merchandise especially jaggery may be brought into the town & stored in the house.

(2) Whether manure may be taken from the town and placed on the fields.

(3) Whether the inhabitants may be allowed to sleep at their houses at nights or employ servants to do so with the object of guarding property.

(4) Whether the inhabitants living outside in the camps may come into the town occasionally to take away property left in their houses for use in the camp.

These points are treated in order

First The storing of jaggery ~~may~~ will be allowed in any house which has been disinfected. If the owner wishes his house to be disinfected at once before it can be attended to in the ordinary course, he must make his own arrangements to get it done and the Supervisor in charge of disinfection will see that it is done properly. The jaggery will be brought in on bandies and stored by coolies: the owner, bandyman and coolies will be granted passports for the purpose by the Tahsildar or the Sub Magistrate for a limited time to be decided by the issuing Officer according to the amount which has to be stored. The Tahsildar will be given discretion to stop the issue of passes if he finds that the concession is ^{being} abused and that the passport holders remain in the town longer than absolutely necessary. Under no circumstances will coolies or bandy men given passes for this purpose, be allowed to remain in the town after sun down.

Second The question of manure is left entirely to the Tahsildar. He is empowered to forbid removal from the heart of the town if he thinks it necessary, but he should as a rule only do so in the rare cases where the removal is absolutely a nuisance and likely to spread contagion, and where the manure can be destroyed on payment of a small compensation. In cases where there is a valuable stock its removal may be allowed passes being granted as for the jaggery to a limited number of persons for a limited time. Each case should be dealt with separately. The Tahsildar will use a careful discretion in the matter persuading the people to leave the manure as it is except when really wanted for the wet fields. Removal from the outskirts of the town is as a rule unobjectionable and even desirable.

Third. Inoculated persons only will be allowed in the town at night: They are allowed to sleep only on the top of the houses and must disinfect themselves before returning to the field camps.
Every person so sleeping must have a pass from the Tahsildar or Sub Magistrate and any one found in the town at night without such passes or found inside the house will be liable to be turned out by the Police and will not again be given a pass.

If the concession is found to be widely abused it will be withdrawn altogether.

Fourth. This will be allowed once a fortnight under special pass. The people are advised to take everything they are likely to require at the time their Houses are allowed to return at all unless it is really necessary for the purpose of getting food stores.

It must be remembered that these rules are issued in the general interest of the people and the undersigned expects to find that the people will willingly co-operate and will not attempt to abuse them.

If they will exercise a certain amount of self denial for the next month or six weeks it may be found possible to allow the town soon to be reoccupied. If they persist in frequently visiting the place they may have to be kept in the camps for an indefinite period.
