Sir, I have the honor to bring to your notice that a large number of horses have had to be unloaded at Tungabhadra Station owing to the Medical Officer thus detaining the cycles for segregation or disinfection, and as the horses come in foreign horse boxes from the Great Indian Peninsula Railway we are unable to detain them and the horses have to be transhipped.

Tungabhadra is a most inconvenient station for this operation. There is no horse loading dock, and horse boxes have to be brought on the main line to the passenger platform, and as these vehicles are not furnished with brakes such an operation is not unattended with danger. The District Traffic Superintendent points out that the object of the Plague authorities could probably be equally well attained by allowing these horse boxes to run on, in the case of animals booked for Stations on or via the Southern Mahratta Railway to Guntakal, and for those in the direction of Madras to Tadpatris, at either of which Stations the transshipment could be effected with much greater facility.

If you agree with this view, I should be much obliged if you would issue the necessary instructions.

I have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servant

In reply to your Ref on c 1193 P I 27.3.99 have the honor to state that I concur in the suggestions of the District Traffic Superintendent. For independent of the station platform being unsuited for loading horses, I have found that one or two cycles are usually sent with about 8 horses and have to be assisted by the Camp servants and station porters who are inexperienced and injury may result to the animals, besides it is very difficult to procure food for them especially grass
