The President.

Sir,

It frequently happens that when passports are issued to soldiers and others that they are ^{returned} ~~are~~ endorsed "not to be found in the lines" or "This man did not report at my office". We get no further information about him, whether he belongs to the regiment or not and it is quite impossible for our men to do anything on the return of the passport. I think that the Fort & regimental authorities should not rest content with the fact that he did not report himself, but should make sure that that person is not residing anywhere on their area of jurisdiction, and ascertain, if possible, if the name, number, etc, are true or false, if the man is on leave anywhere, &c. &c.
