MY DEAR MAJOR THUILLIER,

I have just heard from Mr. Beadon that you wish to send a young man by the "Coromandel." She starts at day light to-morrow, and if the party can get on Board to night, and you can give him this note to shew the Commander, I have no doubt he will receive, and take him to Madras, whence he can easily get back to Vizag. As the "Coromandel" touches no where, please say when you write to the Captain (Lieutenant Stradling, i. n.,) who the relative rank of the person would be in the Army so as to regulate where he should be messed. I hope I am in time as I have just got home.
