No. 22. Read the following letter from Captain F. H. RUNDALL, Consulting Engineer for Irrigation Company; to J. D. BOURDILLON, Esq., Secretary to Government, Madras, dated Kárnúl 13th December 1859, No. 10.

The Deputy Chief Engineer of the Northern Circle having been unable to accomplish his intended visit to the Godávari division previous to my leaving it, has requested me to meet him there if possible towards the end of this month. His Excellency the Governor also desired me to draw up the plans and arrangements for the new workshops and for the improvements in the town of Dauleishwarum, I have the honor, therefore, to request you will obtain permission for me to return to the Godávari division direct from this neighbourhood, instead of proceeding to Madras first, as I shall thereby be enabled to meet the Deputy Chief Engineer, which I could not otherwise do, and shall also save time, as from the prospect of there being no steamer from Madras to the northern ports, I should be obliged to travel by land 600 additional miles, which would be avoided by my going direct from hence.

Before leaving this neighbourhood about the 20th instant, I shall have inspected all the proposed lines of canal nearly as far as the Pennaur, and have arranged with the company's Chief Engineer the sites of the principal works. Meantime the detailed plans and estimates will be prepared, and I hope ready for submission by the time of my return to Madras about the 15th proximo.

No. 23. ORDER THEREON, 21st December 1859, No. 2970.

No order is required, the necessary permission having been given by telegram on the 13th instant.
