Proceedings of the Madras Government, Revenue Department, 7th January 1871.

No. 74. Read the following Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, Home Department, (Public,) under date the 16th December 1870, No. 5,539:—

Read a letter, dated 31st October 1870, from the President of the Cattle Plague Commission, reporting the return of the Commission, on the 30th idem, from Kurseong, and its intention of visiting the Diamond Harbour Sub-division, as well as of establishing an experimental hospital for the treatment of diseased cattle.

RESOLUTION.—On receipt of the above letter, His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General caused inquiries to be made of Mr. Hallen as to the work which the Commission has still before it. It has been ascertained that the Commission has completed its general investigations throughout the country, and that what now chiefly remains to be done is to complete and submit its report. It is expected, however, that this cannot be done for at least six weeks. Mr. Hallen, therefore, proposes to utilize this time by establishing a temporary field-hospital for experimental treatment, post mortem examination, etc., of diseased cattle, in order to ascertain as much as may be possible regarding the best modes of treatment and the most effectual manner of curing this disease. Without the experience which this experimental hospital will give, the Commission's investigation would be incomplete, and it is understood that the sitting of the Commission will not be prolonged further than would otherwise have been the case, as the work of the hospital can go on simultaneously with the drawing up of the report.

2. Under these circumstances, the Governor-General in Council considers that the Commission should finally close its labours on the 1st February 1871. His Excellency is, however, of opinion that there is no necessity for continuing the services of the Members of the Commission other than the two Medical Officers. The Civil Members will, therefore, revert to their substantive appointments, and their services are accordingly re-placed at the disposal of their respective Governments with effect from the 1st proximo. The draft of the report should, however, be sent when ready to each of those Members for his consideration.

It is expected, however, that this cannot be done for at least six weeks. Mr. Hallen, therefore, proposes to utilize this time by establishing a temporary field hospital for experimental treatment, post mortem examination, &c., of diseased cattle, in order to ascertain as much as may be possible regarding the best modes of treatment and the most effectual manner of curing this disease. Without the experience which this experimental hospital will give, the Commission's investigation would be incomplete, and it is understood that the sitting of the Commission will not be prolonged further than would otherwise have been the case, as the work of the hospital can go on simultaneously with the drawing up of the report.
