Proceedings of the Madras Government, Public Works Department,
27th October 1875.

No. 380. Read the following letter from PETER ORR, Esq., to Major-General G. W. WALKER, R.E., Secretary to Government, Public Works Department, Madras, dated 26 Compton Terrace, Islington, London, 24th September 1875 :—

On the occasion of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales passing through Madras, I am very anxious that he should have an opportunity of seeing the steam-pulled punkahs at the General Hospital in action, and as there is not much to be seen at Madras this would be a novelty and a thing which could not be seen anywhere else in India. I know the pulling season will be over with you, but I have no doubt a few days under your order will suffice to start them for the occasion, and I have little doubt the Prince would be pleased and interested in the subject. I need not say how much obliged I would feel could you accomplish this object.

No. 381. Order thereon, 27th October 1875, No. 3,006.

ESTABLISHMENT, No. 18-BB.

It is doubtful that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will have time for an inspection of the General Hospital. But the Presidency District Engineer will have everything in readiness, so that the Punkah machinery may be set in motion at a few hours' notice on any day of the Prince's stay at Madras.
