the question recently raised whether Warrant and Non-Commissioned Officers, other than medical subordinates, are entitled to compensation when not provided with stable accommodation.

2. In reply, he is desired to state that the ruling in the case of medical subordinates laid down in Military Department memorandum, No. 23, dated 1st September 1873, is equally applicable to other Warrant Officers. In that memorandum medical subordinates were alone specifically mentioned, the reference having been made in respect to them; but the principle in both cases is identical.

3. Where compensation may have been admitted in any case, it should not, in the opinion of the Military Department, be retrenched, but no further disbursements of the kind should be made.
