IRRIGATION, No. 34.

WITH a view to ascertain the state of the subterranean water-supply on the upland plains between the hills and the sea, such as those through which the Corteliar and similar rivers take their course, His Grace the Governor has desired that observations of the actual levels at which water is found may be made by the District Engineers and Range Officers of the Chingleput, North Arcot, Nellore, Kistna, and Godavery Districts, at such places as may be most convenient, with reference to competent observers being at hand, and to the existence of deep wells available for observation or to facility for sinking them. No time will be lost in selecting the best lines of observation and commencing a weekly record, report of which will be communicated to Government at the end of each calendar month.
