This is a matter
for W.

In question that there is immense hardship, especially to the junior executive engineers in the abolition of temporary promotions, and as it is settled that this abolition must take place, it would be as well if we could revert to our old system;

I suppose however that I doubt whether India would again consent to our adopting a system different from that of the rest of the country and their consent must be obtained before action is taken

Please see Sir Francis's remarks on the draft of the letter to India - 4/16/80 -
the point relating to temporary promotions has been ~~not~~ decided applicable to
India.

Will it now be decided whether it will not be best to revert
to the old system
of permanent promotions, as explained in General Walker's letter of the 13th February, 1875, No. 407, and
mentioned in the reply from India
headed with G.O. No. 2462, dated

Dr. W.

I do not see a chance of India Especially now
allowing water to adopt a system of promotion in any way different from that obtaining in the other Powers more directly under them - It is in fact useless to refer the matter
