Description

Building

His Highness Maharaja Dairjee Bahadur of Panjore.
The friend and ally of the British Government erect this column.

To Commemorate the triumph of the British arms and the storm fall of Bonaparte 1814

The above is the English inscription in the said building constructed on the sea shore. It is a three storied parapet building (bottom width 30 feet each side) surmounted by a column of 7 stories. The lightning conductor which at first has now been removed. At present it is out of order. ~~The~~ masonry which requires repair is now stained at the top. The building is surrounded by a ditch each of whose (sides) outer side is nearly 90 feet long. Along this side of the ditch are rooms evidently intended for guards &c. It seems to have been, and is now, used as a summer retreat by the Panjore Royal family. It is in the whole in good state of repair.
