Artesian Wells.

Orders passed on G.O., Political Department, regarding — in Pondicherry.

Wells orders

Indd in Recd Ltr Regr

In comparing the cost per metre of these several Artesian wells, the high prices of cost of the wells Nos. 6, 8 and 13, executed by contract and including consequently the cost of superintendence, interest on the Capital sunk on materials, and the profits of the contractors must be taken into consideration. These charges do not appear in the cost of the other wells; they can be valued approximately to a-tenth for the wells executed by Government.

The spot of each of the fourteen Artesian wells is shown on a chart of the territory of Pondicherry annexed to the present notice as well as the tracings reproducing on the same scale as the tracings of the 14th August 1880 the geological place of the seven last wells. The indications given for the Artesian wells, the information on which is insufficient, will be easily found out by their spots on the chart. In ending this brief exposè of the Artesian wells of the territory of Pondicherry, we think it necessary to state that it will be advisable not to defer any longer the placing of a column of ascension in copper to perpetuate the very advantageous results often obtained and sometimes after much labor.

Order—dated 16th February 1883, No. 224, Revenue.

Miscellaneous.

The thanks of this Government will be conveyed, in the Political Department, to His Excellency the Governor of the French Settlements in India for the interesting report recorded above, a translation of which will be published, with this Order, as a Supplement to the Fort St. George Gazette. Spare copies will also be struck off for general distribution.

2. A copy of these Proceedings will be forwarded to the Government of India, who will be informed that, on the recommendation of the Sanitary Commissioner, this Government have lately sanctioned * an experimental boring for an Artesian well in some convenient locality in Madras, and that inquiries are being made in view to similar experiments elsewhere.

A powerful layer of lignite of good quality of M. 10·646 of thickness was met with between M. 73·381 and M. 84·027 of depth.

The first ascending sheet of water did not show itself in the boring only after reaching M. 89·044. It rose to M. 1·50 in downward direction to the soil. This ascending sheet of water reached its maximum of height M. 1·16 above the soil at M. 93·524 of depth.

From M. 79·498 where the first column of M. 0·26 of diameter suddenly stopped, it could only be shoved in to M. 0·080 under the pressure of considerable efforts to about thirty thousand grammes. The boring works continue in the clay without the column of guarantee until M. 95·578 of depth and are stopped on the 1st June 1882. A column of 0·21 of diameter is then made which is finished on the 24th July, and the placing of which at the interior of the column is completed on the 1st August following.

At M. 103·22 on the 5th August. this second column meets with a small bank of pyrites of iron of M. 0·04 of thickness. This bank was bored through and enlarged, notwithstanding which the column refuses to go beyond. Considerable efforts made in an inverse sense do not succeed however to raise it up. Divers means and divers tools are successively employed to attain this end which is arrived at only on the 23rd September after great difficulties. When a new combination is tried without success whilst another was being prepared, the boring being continued without using the tube in the layer of clay and even of clay and sand in which the sides of the hole of the sounding lead perfectly maintain themselves. At M. 109·941 the ascending sheet of water rises to M. 1·10 in a downward direction of the soil; it continues its ascension progressively until M. 112·92 where it reaches the level of the soil. From this point the same sheet of water becomes spouting and its hydrostatic level increases until M. 118·17 where it reaches M. 1·67 above the natural ground. It lowers afterwards and is no more than M. 1·20 at 118·67 of depth. The column is then easily raised up to M. 0·50 and the first hydrostatic level M. 1·67 is found back.

The last tube is afterwards cut at M. 0·20 above the soil, then the basis of the boring having been cleared of the falling down sands, a discharge of 300 litres per minute was obtained. This quantity of an excellent drinkable water is more than sufficient to the consumption and all domestic requirements of the inhabitants of Bahour, the hygienic condition of whom are considerably ameliorated.

Divers other Artesian Wells on which we have no sufficient information have been undertaken in the Territory of Pondicherry principally at—

Chingarcoïl.—At ¼ mile north-west of Archivack. This boring has about 60 metres of depth. The column of guarantee having been imprisoned in compact layers of clay of divers colours nearly similar to those of the Bahour well, the proprietor did not wish to go to the expense of a second column, and make use of the ascending waters of this boring which almost reach the level of the soil to irrigate the fields by the means of a picotee.

Mouroungapacom.—At 130 metres south-west of the well, Colonel Shermann caused an Artesian well to be constructed in his property. The spouting sheet of water was met with at M. 22·00 of depth and discharges nearly 150 litres per minute. The layers met with are evidently the same as those of well No. 8.

Ariancoupom.—At 150 metres south of the Ariancoupom bridge on the western coast of the road to Cuddalore, Mr. P. Tardivel caused a boring to be made by an Indian contractor. The tools employed were not sufficient to go beyond the layers of clay to reach the column of guarantee, notwithstanding which a spouting sheet of water was met with at M. 31·00 of depth and its discharge is about 50 litres per minute. This boring is not tubed in its inferior part. The several layers met with are sensibly similar to those of the well No. 7.

Ariancoupom.—At about 200 metres south of the Ariancoupom Church on the east of the road to Cuddalore in the lands belonging to the Chouldry of Tambonnaicker, Mr. Balakichenanaiker has constructed an Artesian well in which he met with a sheet of spouting water at M. 35·50 of depth. The discharge of the water is of 100 litres per minute at M. 2·10 above the soil. The layers met in this boring are of the same nature as those of the well No. 7.

Papanchavadi.—Between Mouroungapacom and Commapacom at one mile to the west of the well No. 8., Mr. Tambanssavararetty caused to be constructed an Artesian well in his property cultivated with rice. A spouting sheet of water was met with at 51 metres of depth and its discharge is of 300 litres per minute. The layers met with are of the same nature as those of the well No. 7.

Tavalacoupom.—On the east coast of the road to Cuddalore at about 150 metres south-east to the road leading from the road of Cuddalore to Archivack, Mr. Marins LePrince has caused an Artesian well to be bored in his property. A spouting sheet of water was met with at M. 60 of depth and its discharge was of 100 litres per minute. But the owner having found this quantity insufficient is continuing this boring.

Settlement of Karikal.

Government undertook a boring in 1881 on the Government premises at Karikal. The works not having given good results at first were stopped several times and resumed at the end of 1882.

The first column of 0·21 being engaged in the layers of clay and many banks of rocks formed of sediments of a thickness varying from M. 0·11 to M. 0 60, the works were continued with a new column of M. 0·16 of diameter which was introduced in the first column. Some metres lower at M. 87·80 appeared a sheet of water which rose to M. 0·80 in a downward direction of the natural soil. This ascending sheet of water, the first that was met in this boring, gives hope amongst our sounders. The workmen go on with greater zeal when at M. 105·51 deep a new sheet of water, the level of which at the natural level of the soil, showed itself. All haste is used in order to disentangle this sheet of water which proceeds from a layer of thin sand of M. 0·20 of thickness, situated between two banks of agglomerated rocks. The level of this sheet of water remaining the same, the second bank which is only a sheet of M 0·10 of thickness is soon perforated and gives passage to a spouting sheet of water proceeding from a layer of thin pure sand at M. 105·81 of depth. The hydrostatic level of this sheet of water is M. 2·00, the hydrometrical degree of the water is 5°, and its temperature of 34 centigrades. The discharge of this sheet of water being only of 66 litres per minute at M. 0·60 above the soil, this boring will perhaps be continued till a more abundant sheet of water is met with.

The preceding work comprising like the notice of 1880, to which it forms the sequel, the scientific and technical parts only of the borings on the territory of Pondicherry, we have grouped in the table below concerning the fourteen Artesian wells, the geological tracings of which we are aware of as well as all the supplementary information asked for by the Government of the Presidency of Madras to the Government of Pondicherry.
