18. The Chairman then addressed the Trustees in reference to the death of their late colleague, Captain J. H. Taylor, pointing out that he had been throughout a persistent advocate of a north-eastern entrance, without which the Harbour would always be a comparative failure, and that to him, more than any one else, will the credit of its adoption be due, should such entrance be decided on, as is now believed to be the case. Mr. Barlow further stated that ever since the formation of the Trust in June 1886, his late friend had always been at his side with sound advice and ready assistance, and proposed that the Board place on record their very great regret at his death. The Honorable Mr. S. R. Turnbull seconded the proposal, and it was resolved that an expression of the Board's sympathy be conveyed to Captain Taylor's family; and a hope was unanimously expressed that Government may see their way to adequately recognising his past very important services. The Trustees deeply regret being deprived of his able advice and co-operation. It was further desired to be placed on record that it was owing to the late receipt of notice only that caused the absence of those of the Trustees who were not present at the funeral.
