Have endeavored to check the draft standing order with existing rulings, but many of them are not on record here. The draft seems however to have been checked at Madras, and B.W. has noted as follows - "These are in order and may be approved". An order has been drafted accordingly.

These are in order &
may be approved*

I beg to forward herewith for the approval of Government a draft standing order which it is proposed to introduce as an appendix to the Code, embodying the various rulings etc. in connection with Royal Engineer Officers who have elected for continuous Indian service.

2. The orders are now scattered and confusing and as they deal with matter which affects a considerable body of P.W.D. officers, it appears very desirable that the various rulings should be brought together in one place like the Civil Engineers' Provident Fund rules (Appendix B). This office is continually having to refer to the rules in question.

2. The Royal Warrant of February 1886 has been taken as the
