Section 47(c) of the Civil Travelling Allowance Code which lays down that an officer is not entitled to Travelling allowance for a journey during leave of any kind does not seem to apply to horse allowance which under section 29 is drawn all the year round like salary. Casual leave which is granted only for a few days is not recognised under the Civil Leave Code. The absentee on such leave is not relieved of his responsibility nor is he released from the necessity of keeping a horse. Under these circumstances the overseer should, I think, be allowed the horse allowance retrenched by you. Please let me know if you agree with me and if so I shall have the claim included in the next bill.

Please see last clause of Rule 6, Section 29, Civil Travelling Allowance Code. Conveyance allowance of P.W.D. subordinates is not drawn all the year round like salary.

2. As a rule, claims for conveyance allowance are not preferred during casual leave and when preferred, it has been the practice for some years to disallow such claims.

3. If however you consider the practice wrong, I would suggest your address the Government on the subject.

Believes that it has always been the practice to allow single home allowance (not daily allowance) to subordinates when on casual leave and considers that this is right and fair and in accordance with the spirit of the Civil Travelling Allowance Code.

4. Is not aware that it has been the practice for some years to disallow such claims and requests a reconsideration.

of the matter.

Please see standing order No. 46 modifying section 29 of the Civil Travelling Allowance Code, second edition; also last sentence of last clause of section 24 of recent provisional revised issue of chapters I to 15. Conveyance allowance is "inadmissible during leave of any description". This should have been pointed out before.

No. 3687 dated 24 July, 88

To C

Please see Civil Plane Code Section 16 note, in which it is laid down that Casual leave for short periods is "not recognized and is not subject to any rule. Technically therefore an officer is not treated as absent from duty and his salary is not intermitted "as conveyance allowance" is drawn like salary all the year round (See C.T.A. Code Section 24 Provisional issue) the inference would be that like salary it should not be intermitted during casual leave.

I think you are very likely right, but as there is a doubt, the question had better, I think, be referred through W. for the orders of the Government of India in the Financial Department.
