For orders. 899

The building was converted into a dwelling house only so recently as 1887, at the express request of the then Ex. Sur. - no mention was then made of the many defects now brought to notice.

The rent calculated according to Code rules, exceeds 10 per cent of the Ex. Sur. pay. Mr. Norpor will therefore pay only 10 p.c. & this does not appear unreasonable.

C.
24.2.89

Mr Norpor must pay rent for the building under the rules; whether he occupies it or not.

So per annum is what unreasonable rent for an Executive Engr. Mr. 4.7.89

incompliment

In the case, the rule regarding the assessment of rents at particular stations with reference to prevailing rates - (code para 1041, rule II) will apparently not apply, the only object of reducing rents under that rule being apparently to ensure the occupation of a building which might otherwise empty.

Read the following

From the Supply Engr. to Secy. A. H. No. 501 J. J. of 8 June 1889
 From the Engineer P. W. Dept. No. 294 of 25 June 1889.

The Govt. observes that only so recently as 1887 the conversion of the Engr. Engineer's office at Kigapattin into a dwelling house was sanctioned on the recommendation of the late Engr. Engineer and the Supply Engineer, and no mention was then made of the many defects now brought to notice.

Under para 1038A Pro. Code, Mr. Crawford must pay rent for the building whether he occupies it or not. The rate, calculated according to Code rules and the Engr. Engineer's valuation of the building, is Rs. 82/- per annum, but under Rule I note (5) para 1041 Pro. Code, this rate is subject to a maximum of 10% of the occupant's salary, or, in the
