From,

A. S. Taylor Esquire
Executive Engineer, 3^d Grade.

To,

The Secretary to Government P.W.D. Through the Superintending Engineer, Irrigation Project Works.

Sir,

In February last I addressed a memorial to the Secretary of State setting forth how in the prospectus relying upon which I entered the Royal Indian Engineering College, the equivalents of the salary, furlough pay and pensions were implied if not expressed in pounds sterling at Rs 10 to the pound.

Since the submission of this memorial the Secretary of State has recognized individual claims to furlough pay in pounds sterling at par.

I respectfully submit that I am entitled to receive in arrears the difference

Difference between the half pay given to me when on furlough which was calculated at the current rate of exchange, and the same pay calculated at par.

The pay in question having been drawn from the India Office by my bankers in London I have been doubtful as to what course I should pursue in representing my claim, and I venture to address you with the request that my application maybe forwarded for the orders of the Secretary of State.

The grounds on which I base my application are briefly, as follows.

Relying on the officially published Prospectus of the year I entered the Royal Indian Engineering College, after Competitive Examination in 1872. I passed through the College Course and was appointed as Assistant Engineer 2^d Grade on 1st October 1875.

In the above Prospectus in every clause treating with the figures of 'absentee pay' the amount in pounds sterling is placed side by side with the amount in Rupees, and ten rupees is taken as the absolute equivalent of one pound sterling.

24th

In the body of the Prospectus also is added this note - "Ten rupees are nearly equivalent in value to one pound sterling". The object of this note can only have been to lay down ten rupees to the pound as the basis on which the figures given in rupees were to be calculated by those who were unfamiliar with the Rupee.

Further, the Civil Leave Code in force both at the time I entered the College and also at the time I was appointed to the P.W.D. contained the following clause. "If an officer's Contract of service contains a stipulation to the effect that 'a pound sterling shall be considered equal to 10 rupees' and calculated after the rate of ten rupees"

"his leave allowance shall be converted into sterling at that rate". Now the prospectus of 1872 is my 'Contract of service' and as shown above distinctly contains the said stipulation.

Therefore both by the terms of my contract itself, as well as by the leave rules in force when I entered the service I submit I am entitled to have my leave allowance converted into sterling at the rate of ten rupees to the pound sterling.

I took furlough for two years from May 1884, and I was permitted to return to duty after eighteen months, viz in November 1885. During those eighteen months I drew half-pay calculated only at the current rate of exchange and it is for the difference between that rate and ten rupees to the pound sterling that I now submit my claim.

I have the honor to be
Sir
Yours most obedient servant
