it appears not only feasible but desirable to continue on the road to the Southern Extension. The course of the road will be through the northern covered passage and over the drain from the Kitchen running east, provision for the former of which will be made by a trap-door arrangement, and for the latter by a few slabs thrown across the drain. These alterations will necessarily involve an increase in the Estimate which, of course, cannot be avoided.

2. Regarding the direction of flow of the sewage matter, it may be safely left to the Engineering Department who doubtless have studied the gradients to find the necessary fall to flush matter running northwards - & discretion, besides, which the sewage matter is bound to take to reach the new Municipal drain in Broadway road. -

If so also doubtful if the Sewage &c will pass to the North as proposed; the natural outlet would apparently be in the other direction, viz South in the direction of the Cooum River.
