DOWIAISHWERAM, 23rd April 1890

(J. W. M.)

SIR,

I have the honor to inform you that the Exe Engineer Rushikulya Doo has sent a Survey Report of Unserviceable famine tools, which were lent to the Tahsildar for civil agency works requesting sanction to write them off the tools return.

As I cannot find any rule in the famine code as to the authority by whom the sanction can be accorded I request you will be good enough to favour me with the necessary instructions on the subject.

I have the honor to be
Sir,

Your most obedient servant

Your office note No. 2196 C. dated 10th.

May 1890.

There is no rule as to the authority by whom sanction to write off unserviceable famine tools should be accorded, but it seems probable — & para 9 of memo from the Chief Engineer P.W.D. No. 2453 C. of 8th. December 1883 bears this out — that it has been the intention of Government that a more or less fixed stock of famine tools should be kept up in view of possible emergencies. If this is the case there should presumably be some restriction on the Superintending Engineer's power of writing off, instead of replacing, lost or unserviceable famine tools, and the first sentence of the para of the Chief Engineer's memo referred to above seems to suggest that there must have been some intention of requiring sanction of Government to reduction of stock of famine tools.

2. It would be well to have the intention of Government on this matter clearly defined in all necessary detail, and then to embody the same in the P.W. Code.
